ANNUAL REPORT OF LOCAL RED CROSS SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Gleichen branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held in the work room.

"The members had a successful year in spite of many difficulties such as being unable to get their supplies, and low attendance at the weekly meeting meetings held each Tuesday afternoon. Due to the prevailing spirit that the "War is won, no worry worry," Mr. Norman Urquhart, chairman of our executive committee, (in an accompanying article) tells us very clearly what our duties lie with respect to our work.

We sent to divisional headquarters 310 articles of hospital and refugee sewing; a number of bandages; 12 complete layettes, and 62 quilts were completed and sent. The ladies of the Madsenbrook U.P.A.F.A. assisted in making many of these.

Turtleneck sweaters are in great demand so the wool convenor continues to make lots of knitting and garments.

There were 151 letters, articles sent to headquarters, five local boys each received a pair of socks upon their enlistment.

In March we sent two local boys who are prisoners of war a blanket each and have evidence that they both received same.

Our welcoming committee, who met all local service personnel returning from overseas giving them coffee, tea, etc., as cigar boxes, fruit, etc. The only veteran of this war confined to the Col. Belcher Hospital, Johnny Gutstrat, was very pleased to be remembered by the local Red Cross Society. A small local Red Cross gift was given to him on arrival from overseas and at Xmas, a request from a local family for clothing was taken care of. Also at Christmas time we were very happy to be able to give gifts to two families making their Christmas just a little more cheerful.

The Calgary Mobile Blood Clitie paid the district two visits, April and September, and we were most happy to use the facilities of the Blackfoot Indian Hospital and the assistance of Dr. Windsor for which we have been most grateful.

The Red Cross wishes to thank everyone who in anyway assisted during the past year.

We are very sorry Mrs. J. A. McArthur, our president for the past three years, has had to resign due to her health. We take this opportunity of expressing our thanks to Mrs. McArthur for her untiring efforts during her term of office.

The following officers were elected by acclamation on 1943:

MAYOR, COUNCILLORS AND SCHOOL

BOARD RE-ELECTED

Monday was nomination day for mayor, councillors and school trustees. There were no surprises. Since there was just enough nominated to fill all various offices there will be no election.

Mayor Suttermeyer, Councillors Tom and Roy Brown term on the council had expired. They were again nominated for the same positions.

The members will gather Monday evening for the next twelve months use: Mayor Suttermeyer, Councillors A. W. Gilbert, T. Brown, R. W. Brown, R. S. Haskayne, R. K. Hunter and J. J. Jones.

The term of Dr. Farquharson, R. K. Hunter and W. J. McKay on the school board had expired. Mr. McKay who is at present living in Calgary, place was taken by Al Wilson, the new teacher. Mr. Wilson is a gunnery shooter. This will be Mr. Wilson's first experience in public office.

The members of the school board: Dr. R. G. Farquharson, R. K. Hunter, A. W. Wilson, P. N. Warner and W. J. Ferguson.

While hostilities continue, our supplies have grown to be paramount to our needs. We must remember the wounded soldiers and the prisoners of war. We in the Red Cross must make very sure that sufficient supplies are available on all battlefronts at all times—and in particular through anniversaries. That is our privilege—and duty.

To the women in the workrooms across the Dominion I would say this: To do your efforts have been well short of many others. Nevertheless, the work the world has done been such a concerted selfless effort to keep the clothing and warm comforts and surgical dressings en route to those front-line dressing stations.

We also want to add my tribute to the women volunteers in the prisoners of war packing plants who have made, and are making, a magnificent contribution to Red Cross work.

At a well attended meeting of the Canadian Legion held on 4th of February the master of the Gleichen Branch of the Legion associating itself with the Gleichen Curling Club in the construction of a new curling rink. Some discussion took place regarding the heating of the church and it was left with the warrant to look into the matter.

It was decided that the members of the congregation would be asked for an additional $2 in order to clear up the back assessment.

The following officers were elected for this year:

President—Warden—R. S. Haskayne, Secretary—Treasurer—A. B. MacCallum.

Hon. Member Vestor Board—J. E. Ostrandter.

Postmaster—Moore, Goodwin, Both H. James, Hampton, Vandull, and Ramsey.

Lay Delegates—Masters and Ostrandter.

Alternating Wardens—Horn and MacCallum.

varieties over the prairies made by the crop testing plan indicate that the higher the sowing rate the better the yield over all other varieties and is by far the most widely used variety on our prairies. Thatcher now occupies 54.8 percent of the total acreage sown to wheat in the three prairie provinces. Thatcher was first in yield last year. Marquis is still in second place, occupying 15.5 percent of the wheat acreages. Red Bob is in third place with 12.3 percent. Regent has made a considerable advance in Manitoba, occupying 11.4 percent of the acreage sown to wheat last year.

Thatcher greatly dominates in Saskatchewan, occupying 75 percent of the acreage, and dominates Manitoba, 44 percent of the acreage. Red Bob holds the list with 20.3 percent, closely followed by Marquis with 30.7 percent. Regent has made a considerable advance in Manitoba, occupying 11.4 percent of the acreage sown to wheat last year.

The acreage in Garnet production was about half that of Marquis, the earliness of that variety, which enabled the Garnet crop to escape frost damage in repeat years.

LEGION TURNS DOWN CURLING RINK PROPOSAL

At a well attended meeting of the Canadian Legion held on 4th of February the master of the Gleichen Branch of the Legion associating itself with the Gleichen Curling Club in the construction of a new curling rink with club rooms for the use of the Canadian Legion.

It was pointed out by the officials from the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion, who were present at the meeting, that such an undertaking would not be according to Legion standards. The master of the Gleichen Legion would be responsible for the construction of the rink and the Legion could not constitutionally have a place for the young veterans when they return.

A resolution was passed that the Legion appreciates the broad intention of the members of the Canadian Legion to construct a new curling rink for their entertainment and regrets that the Legion cannot become a part of the plans as it feels that it must have its own home.

The Legion members from Queenstown then adjourned to the Gleichen Curling Club in the village of Gleichen to witness the opening of the new rink.

Millicent Wayne had come back to Centreville frankly to get a husband. It was her last chance. But she had not, it seems she was wise, with no money except the three hundred dollars in her purse, she presented the world's best reason why small town girls go home from big cities.

The last three years had been telling. First, the concern for which she had worked had failed. Then had followed a series of part-time jobs, part time, finally, no job at all. Indeed, to her mind, marriage seemed the only steady position.

On the train she kept turning over Aunt Agatha's remarks about Centreville. "I wonder if you go back," she had said, "remember it's the Penbertons who have all the money. They head the bank. Leonard Penberton must be just about your equal."

As the train pulled in at the grubby little station, Millicent sighed. But the town itself was pretty. Every family had a house, even if they could afford new paint even in their houses. The hotel was reasonable and clean. She was about decided, going like to Centreville, after all.

"The first thing I'll do," she resolved, "is drop in at the bank. Open an account. Then, quite casually, I'll ask to see Mr. Leonard Penberton. After all, the Penbertons were family."

The bank teller was alert and friendly. When she gave her name, he exclaimed, "Don't tell me you're Millie Wayne. I'm a Penberton. If I held out a hand—"

"Well, let's refresh them," he said. "How about dinner tonight?"

Millicent smiled. "All right," she told him. They went to Ivy Hill Inn and danced to the soothing rhythm of a small but brilliant band. All during dinner, Millicent kept staring at Len Penberton. He was a tall, well-built, with a likable personality. If this was the way they made them in Centreville, what was the world the world?

On the way home to town, Len said, "I want you to meet my folks." And, suddenly, Millicent felt a little pang of remorse. She glanced at Len again. He had a kind face, but he had dimmed his eyes. He was still staring uncomprehendingly ahead.

"I'd love to," she said. "Only I'd rather wait a while. I still feel a little embarrassed. We had dinner with him, with his wife, and his son, and his daughter, and his mother, and his wife's mother, and his wife's mother's mother."

Leonard laughed. "Oh, you'll get over it. My folks will see to that. Nothing put on them about. But I don't want to rush you."

Fishing conditions in Jasper are better than ever before. Major Wood reported that the brook trout eggs were hatched in the spring and eastern brook trout eggs in the fall. The Great Lake trout were also cultivated for fishing and the brook trout and the fish were raised in a hatchery on the Maligne River until they were fingerlings, to be released into the lakes throughout the district.

Last week was the beginning of the second week that they went out to the Great Lake Country to attend the goat roundup. Mr. Leonard Penberton said, "Well, young lady, this time I won't take no for an answer. You're coming to my house for dinner. Your mother's expecting you."

"Leonard," said Millicent suddenly, and she stopped.

"You don't have to tell me a thing. I know you have a boy friend at home. I can't help you make you forget him. All's fair in love and war, you know."

And Millicent, realizing what she had said, added, "I'm sorry. I have perfect coverage of the park. Areas overland and lookout towers are connected by telephone. We are establishing mobile communications stations at strategic points so that we may know of conditions at all times and adjust our organization accordingly. Watchers are on duty at all times," he declared.

The older man put an arm around Millicent. "Well, bless my soul if you're going to bring up the living image of your mother, Caroline," he called, "here's little Millie."

A cheery, round young woman in a gingham apron came out on her heels. "Mother, I've got some news for you," she said, "how you've grown! I always remember you as a prima little shaver with an inquisitive tongue in your head." Millicent laughed in spite of herself. "Well, I guess the Penbertons live on Sunrise Boulevard."

He laughed. "Sunrise Boulevard? Why, no. That's where the other Penbertons live. You know, the ones who have a bank."

Millicent stared at him. "But Leonard—" she managed to say.

Len grimaced. "Oh, I'm just working for third per cent. I suppose I would be, if I knew that if Dad hadn't named me for Christopher Penberton's only son."

Millicent leaped back in her rocking chair. Centreville certainly was nice. "You know," she said, "about that Len's father, I always thought the Penbertons lived on Sunrise Boulevard."

He laughed. "Sunrise Boulevard? Why, no. That's where the other Penbertons live. You know, the ones who have a bank."

Millicent stared at him. "But Leonard—" she managed to say.

Len grimaced. "Oh, I'm just working for third per cent. I suppose I would be, if I knew that if Dad hadn't named me for Christopher Penberton's only son."

The older man was thoughtful. "Just on sight, I guess. We folks on this side of town never did know much about those people."

From the back of the house a voice called, "Supper's ready!"

Len reached for Millicent's hand. "I told you, Millie, and Dad were swell people," he said.

"There never were better," smiled Millicent. In that moment she had picked the right Penberton.

Jasper National Park Preparing For Summer Visitors

When summer visitors begin going back to the Canadian Rockies after the winter, they will find Jasper National Park prepared for them, according to Major J. A. Wood, park superintendent, interviewed in Montreal.

For the past two summers, during the present winter, Dr. Michael C. Cowen, University of British Columbia biologist, has been making a wild life survey of the sanctuary which extends over 4,200 square miles. Major Wood said. He has been locating summer and winter feeding grounds for the animals. The animals are very healthy and there has been no falling off in numbers. Moose, elk, white moose, mule deer, mountain sheep, goats, black bear, and the smaller mammals are to be found in the park in great numbers.

"Few of the bears actually came to town this past year," he said. "The animals have had plenty of room to move about. The bear crop was good. The deer are as good as ever, but we have had one or two taken."

Leonard laughed. "Oh, you'll get over it. My folks will see to that. Nothing put on them about. But I don't want to rush you."

Fishing conditions in Jasper are better than ever before. Major Wood reported that the brook trout eggs were hatched in the spring and eastern brook trout eggs in the fall. The Great Lake trout were also cultivated for fishing and the brook trout and the fish were raised in a hatchery on the Maligne River until they were fingerlings, to be released into the lakes throughout the district.

We are establishing mobile communications stations at strategic points so that we may know of conditions at all times and adjust our organization accordingly. Watchers are on duty at all times," he declared.

The roads and trails are in good condition. The park roads have been opened up during the war, except the one-way secondary roads to facilitate the transport of supplies and equipment to the fire rangers. We met all the first mail road to certain improvements, and have perfect coverage of the park. Areas overland and lookout towers are connected by telephone. We are establishing mobile communications stations at strategic points so that we may know of conditions at all times and adjust our organization accordingly. Watchers are on duty at all times," he declared.

The older man put an arm around Millicent. "Well, bless my soul if you're going to bring up the living image of your mother, Caroline," he called, "here's little Millie."
